

“Violence-Free” Art Exhibit

Schools all over the United States are thinking of creative ways to promote a violence-free environment. Sponsoring an ART EXHIBIT with one of the theme(s) below is a great way to get every student on board to supporting alternative ways of addressing anger and frustration while at school.

Acceptance

Students come in every shape, size and color. Teaching one another the importance of accepting the differences is the key to a better tomorrow.

Cultural Diversity

It can be strange when another student behaves differently than us. They may wear different clothes, celebrate a different holiday or even have a different religion. However, differences does not have to separate us. It can be interesting to learn about a new culture or do new things.

Race

Racism is wrong! The color of our skin is just the color of our skin. It does not define how smart or beautiful we are. Racism is just another way to divide us. Standing up and stopping racism creates a violent-free school and creating artwork to support all the races can be empowering.

Gender Equality

Every student has been told boys and girls can grow up to be whatever they want but sometimes they need a little reminder. Art projects focused on the equality of genders as well as the LGBT Community can be just another way to support a violence-free school.

Religion

Religion has always played a huge role for Americans. It was one of the main reason behind this country's foundation: Freedom of Religion. Unfortunately, many individuals have forgotten this and want to make judgement calls on what religion is right and wrong. Religion doesn't make us violent; only people misinterpreting religion can do that. Artwork depicting the importance of the choice of religion can support a violence-free environment.
